| | Generate ideas from learners about their definition of resources. | Recap of what was discussed the day before and segue to the next lesson. | Recap of the lesson the previous day. | Recap of the lesson the previous day. | Recap of the lesson the previous day. | | |
| A. Reviewing previous lesson or presenting the new lesson | Resources are a stock or supply of money, materials, staff, and other assets that can be drawn on by a person or organization in order to function effectively. | Yesterday, we familiarized ourselves with management of family resources. We identified examples of resources and | | Yesterday, we talked about money and the need for its prudent management, We also identified sources of money. | Mention that this week we have talked about time, energy and money as examples of non-material, human and material | | |

| | Monday | Tuesday | Wednesday | Thursday | Friday |
|---|--|---|---|---|--|
| | Elicit from the class – what, then, is the meaning of family resources? The learners are asked to give examples of family resources and needs. The learners are asked to categorize the resources into the following: (a) Human (b) Material (c) Nonmaterial Mention that the resources generated in the discussion need to be managed. Ask the learners their idea of management. | categorized them into human, material and nonmaterial. We focused on time as a nonmaterial resource and its importance. The class was asked to prepare a daily time and work schedule and it was explained why they had included specific activities in the schedule, as well as the choice of time allotment. From the list of resources, choose another example. Energy might be one and falls under human resources. | Again, use the list of resources | Ask the class. | resources. This activity is intended for |
| B. Establishing a purpose for the lesson | resources in the context of family which will be discussed in the lesson. | management of resources in the context of family, which will be discussed in the lesson. | identified by the learners as point of reference — choose another resource e.g.money. Money falls under material resource. The prudent management of money is very important. | "Do you think the family income is sufficient for the family? "Do you think the family income is more than sufficient for the family? "Do you think the family income is not sufficient for the family? | the learners to be able to deepen appreciation of the resources that were discussed this week. |
| C. Presenting examples/ instances of the new lesson | Refer to the response of the learners on the examples of resources. Depending on the response, zero in on an example provided by the learners e.g. time. Time is in the category of nonmaterial. Time is gold. It is a God-given gift that must be valued and used wisely. Time is short and once lost, cannot be regained. Proper time management can bring good results. | Ask the learners why energy is important. Why should this be managed? How should this be managed? Every activity utilizes energy, thus reducing strength and causing tiredness and fatigue. Our energy has its limits, so we have to avoid unnecessary use. The proper management of strength can speed up work and reduce stress. | Elicit comments and opinions from the learners on this sentence – "The prudent management of money is very important." Articulation of opinions, views and comments through provision of examples. The teacher will bring out meta cards containing quotes on money. The class will explain the meaning of the "quotes" then provide examples. | Why do you think the family income is? - More than sufficient for the family - Sufficient for the family - Not sufficient for the family Give examples. | Presentation of group work. Each group will be given 8 minutes to present their work. |

| D. Discussing new concepts and practicing new skills #1 | The learners are asked to give the advantages of proper time management. Examples are also provided. (1) Happiness and security for having accomplished something very important for the day; (2) More time to spend for family members after accomplishing the planned activity; and (3) More time to attend to other constructive activities and worthwhile projects. | The teacher will divide the class into four (4). Using photos and drawings brought by the learners, identify helpful measures that need to be done to simplify work at home and conserve human energy. | Money is very important. It is a part of life just like time and energy. How do we differentiate money from income? Money is a current medium of exchange in the form of coins and banknotes. Income is money received, especially on a regular basis, for work or through investments. | Based on our discussion, we have realized that family income most of the time was not sufficient? What do we do to ensure that we spend the family income wisely? | |
| E. Discussing new concepts and practicing new skills#2 | Time can be managed properly by scheduling activities wisely. Make plan for every activity. Routinize some activities based on available time and how often these tasks have to be done. The preparation of a realistic daily time schedule is a helpful management tool to help the students identify and prioritize activities. | Each group will report in class. Examples on application should also be given in the report. | Ask what the possible sources of money are? ACROSTICS Using the acronym MONEY, provide a corresponding word or phrase opposite each letter, indicating its possible sources. The group assignment the previous day will be followed. | Group yourselves into four (4). Identify helpful tips in the wise spending of the family money. Provide examples. | |
| F. Developing mastery (Leads to Formative Assessment 3) | Ask the learners to prepare a one-day time and work schedule. The identified learners will be asked to present their schedule. | -do- | Ask the class to bring out the photos or drawings on the possible sources of money. As a group prepare a collage of the photos and present it in class. The teacher will facilitate discussion on other sources of family income that may not be covered by the group. | Synthesis of reports: The following are some helpful tips in the wise spending of your money. • Make a list of all the needed things to avoid buying things which are not much needed. Include the kind, size, color and prices to be bought. • Know and compare the prices of commodities to be bought, Do not buy products with unreasonably high price. | |
| G. Finding practical applications of concepts and skills in daily living | Explain why they have included the activities in their schedule. Clarify why they have allotted the number of minutes in the activities. | After the completion of the group work, the teacher will reinforce the discussion by synthesizing the results of the discussion. • Analyze the activity. • Use gadgets to facilitate completion of work. • Arrange the materials and things needed at work in one place. • Know the appropriate time in carrying out the activity in order to | The teacher will explain to class that the money being used by the family comes from the salary or other forms of income of family members. It can also come from bonuses, commissions or honorarium received by an employee belonging to the family. Other source of family income will be profits from business from those who are self-employed. | Buy fruits and vegetables in season to be sure of their freshness, cheap price, and their good quality. Buy in bulk foods which are needed every day. Know the less costly ingredients that can be used as substitute for expensive items, Shop at the market nearest your place.
